You may also use Photoshop CS6 for other types of file manipulation, including image compositing, image vectorization, and design for print. Be sure to read Chapter 10 to learn more about those. Preview, or Edit, Images The first step in any graphics manipulation is, of course, to look at the original. This is where you set your expectations and determine what you want to do to the image. You need to look at your image on a computer screen or print or paper and decide where you want it to go. You can also preview your image using the program by changing settings, resizing, and so on. You can edit any file in Photoshop, whether it's a photo, graphics, vector, or another image. If you intend to print the image, you can modify it using the print options on the print dialog box. To preview an image in Photoshop, choose Image⇒Image, and then click Browse to open the folder containing your images and select one to view. (When you're using the browser, you may not need to specify the file name — just the location in the folder. For example, if the folder is `C:\photos`, clicking on a file would open it in Photoshop.) If you don't like the image, simply cancel by clicking the red x on the preview. Photoshop will display all edits you've made to the file and you can use those as a starting point for modifying the image further. Change the size of the image You can enlarge or reduce the size of an image. To do so, first select the image that you want to work on. Then select Image⇒Image Size to open the Size dialog box. You can resize the width and height of the image or resize both at the same time to alter the proportions. To resize an image for prints, set the Output Size to Print (as shown in the following figure). Choose which way you want to scale the image: • Drag the Width and Height handles in the corners to resize the image. • Double-click the Width and Height boxes. • Click the Width and Height boxes to lock the size. (After you click both boxes, a vertical line and a horizontal line appear across the middle of the boxes. If you make a change to one box, the other box also reflects the change.) • You can resize multiple images at one time by using the Arrange and Distribution commands, which I explain in Creating a logo for a small business may be an easy task for Photoshop Designers, but creating a logo for a large enterprise is much more difficult. Using Photoshop Elements, you can create a banner in less than an hour. If you want to create a logo and a banner for a big company, Photoshop Elements is the way to go. It's the fastest and the most practical option for businesses, and is especially helpful for graphic design beginners or designers who are not creative enough. You don't have to use Photoshop Elements to create a banner for a small business. If you want, you can use Adobe Photoshop, Apple PhotoShop or any other traditional, professional design program for creating a small business banner. Designing a Huge Banner When you design a huge banner, you can use Photoshop Elements or any design program such as Adobe Photoshop. However, Photoshop Elements can be helpful in designing a huge banner because this program does not have enough features to create something as complicated as a huge banner. If you want to design a huge banner, you can use Photoshop Elements, but it's still not as difficult and complex as Photoshop because Photoshop Elements doesn't have enough features to create a banner. Designing a banner for a small business is an easy task for Photoshop Elements because most design questions revolve around the colors and fonts on the banner. Creating a large banner is one of the toughest design tasks. When you design a large banner, you have to consider the size of the banner, its colors and the designs of the text on 388ed7b0c7

Q: Update tables in mysql I want to do a select that returns the columns "category", "price" and "id" for products in a certain category. The result of the select should be in one table (let's call it "products_categorie" for now). When I want to delete a single row in the "categorie" column I want all the other rows in the table to be deleted (products with the same category are being associated with different products_id's). How can I do that? I tried it with the following code, but it doesen't work. DELETE FROM products_categorie WHERE id IN (SELECT id FROM products WHERE category=1) A: The SELECT needs to be inside the where statement to get the IDs for deleting the rows. And you want it to check for the category column and then check for the ID in the where statement as you don't want rows with the category 2 deleted. DELETE FROM products_categorie WHERE id IN (SELECT id FROM products WHERE category=1 AND id!= 1) A unanimous Supreme Court struck down the federal Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) on Tuesday, ruling that the federal government cannot deny federal benefits to legally married same-sex couples. The justices, in a 5-4 vote, ruled that the 1996 law -- which defines marriage as one man and one woman for purposes of federal benefits -- is unconstitutional as applied to same-sex couples. The majority opinion was written by Justice Anthony Kennedy, who is the longest-serving Supreme Court justice on the bench today. "The federal statute must be invalidated in its entirety as a defense to any claim of a constitutional right to marry a spouse of the same sex," Kennedy wrote. "It is our responsibility to remedy the errors we find, if we can. The judgment of the trial court is affirmed." Justice Antonin Scalia dissented, writing that "DOMA was enacted precisely to arrive at the same legitimate result" as the majority opinion. The decision comes one year after the high court ruled 5-4 in favor of California's Proposition 8, which outlawed gay marriage in that state. "DOMA's principal effect is to identify a subset of state

A very good government and politics blog....! Monday, June 27, 2008 Kejriwal he is the sort of person who deeply misses a good fight. If he has not lived so far, he will certainly live his whole life chasing that fight. That is why he has been plunging into everything – from his initial fight with the Aam Aadmi Party to the latest Muzaffarabad sit-in. But Kejriwal has always been a failure. In 2002, he was the chief ministerial candidate in Delhi and the AAP, the party he founded, was nearly routed. It was only because his predecessor Hardeep Singh Puri was able to woo the upper caste voters that Kejriwal could even win. In the 2004 Lok Sabha election, he never got past the 5% barrier with his sole contest with the then Congress leader Karan Singh in Punjab. And in 2006, he could not even make a dent in Amethi even though he was pitted against the most powerful person in Uttar Pradesh – none other than the then chief minister Mulayam Singh Yadav. All these achievements have only revealed Kejriwal's inadequacy. In 2002, he was a good orator but had no base. He probably could not even touch anyone in 2002. Mulayam Singh had probably forgotten what Kejriwal had said. In 2004, he was way behind the constituency he was contesting. His 2002 and 2004 performances are not the best but it was not the base he had in his hands. In 2006, he was way behind and had nothing to show for. Thus, he ran after Mulayam Singh Yadav. But Kejriwal is getting better. On the basis of his Maharashtra experience, he will be able to take his campaign to Bihar. The only problem will be that he will have to fight a incumbent on the other side. Nitish Kumar is no dummy. He will counter Kejriwal's campaign mercilessly. But Kejriwal is hardly going to show anything in Bihar. His only claim to fame will be the fact that he is the only politician from Delhi to be facing the voters there. Everything else will be history. Arvind Kejriwal will fail in Bihar but will defeat his current rival Murli Manohar Joshi in the Maharashtra Assembly elections. If we consider the entire campaign of both Kejriwal and Joshi, then there is nothing that Kejriwal has been able to do that his rival Joshi has not been able to do. And given the choice, most voters will be ready to
